COMP 1017

Day 08

Link to Pages in Subdirectories

So, what happens if we keep all of our pages inside of a sub-folder?

In that case, if we want to link to the page, we have to tell our browser to go into the sub-folder and find that HTML file.

framework

- css
- img
- js
- pages
- index.html

```html

  Link to Second Page

… but what if we're linking from a page inside of the sub-folder and want to link back to the `index`?

We have to tell our browser to go back (up one level, to the root) and find the `index`.

```html

    Return to Index

